DISCOVERY QUESTIONNAIRE — SAMPLE

The discovery questionnaire is sent to the buyer before the first call, or used live on the call. The full kit includes 28 questions grouped into five sections. The sample below shows six questions from across the sections.

01 In one sentence, what would be different about your business at the end of this project?

02 Who is the decision-maker on this project — and who else needs to be comfortable with the decision?

03 What does success look like six months after delivery? Be specific.

04 What has been tried before? What happened? (Be candid — it saves us both time.)

05 Is there a date on the calendar that is driving this project? If so, what is it and why?

06 If we declined this project, what would you do instead?

The full questionnaire is grouped into Background · Outcomes · Decision · Constraints · Risk. Each section has 5–7 questions and a notes column for the buyer's written response.

PROJECT BRIEF TEMPLATE — SAMPLE

The brief template is what you write after the discovery call — for yourself and for the buyer. It is one page. It is the document the proposal is written from. The sample below shows the structure.

PROJECT NAME	A short name the buyer and you both use. Not the buyer's internal code name.
BUYER	Decision-maker, role, contact. Named once at the top of the brief.
SITUATION	Two paragraphs, in the buyer's words where possible. Quoted from the discovery call.
OUTCOME	One sentence. What is different six months after delivery. If you cannot write it in one sentence, the project is not yet clear.
SCOPE (DRAFT)	Named deliverables. Each as a noun. Drafted before the proposal — refined in the proposal.
EXCLUSIONS (DRAFT)	Named non-deliverables. Drafted now so the proposal does not surprise the buyer later.
CONSTRAINTS	Dates, dependencies, fixed inputs, fixed decisions. Named, not implied.
STAKEHOLDERS	Decides · Reviews · Affected. Three lists. If you do not know who decides, the project is not ready.
RISKS	Two to four named risks. Each with a mitigation that is a person and a date, not a hope.
NEXT STEP	One sentence. Proposal by [date]. Or: declined, with reason.
